Special to the REVIEW.

Phoenix, Feb. 28 .- The report of Attorney General Knox concerning the official conduct of Justice Street of Arizona was made public here this evening, which was a signal for the announcement that Street's enemies will carry their charges to the president in hope of ousting Street from office, although his term expires in three weeks. Knox finds Street guilty of nepotism and other indiscretions, but fails to find ample proof in the charges of corruption and collusion. - Henry Gatwater, who conducted the prosecution against Street in Washingtion, has sent criticism of Knox's report to the president and urges immediate dismissal of the accused judge.
